[Private.] WASHINGTON, 10th November, 1859.—My dear sir: On yesterday afternoon a gentleman called to see me and presented his card, of which the following is a copy: "Colonel James Patton, Patentee of Patton's Self-balancing Sashraiser and Lock Combined. Postoffice Box No. 651, Troy, N. V. Residence No. 32 Seventh street ton's Self-balancing Sashraiser and Lock Combined. Postoffice Box No. 651, Troy, N. Y. Residence No. 32 Seventh street, Troy, N. Y." He came with another gentleman. They remained a few minutes during the hour of reception, and went away. After he had left, he returned and said he felt it his duty to make an important communication to me, and I told him to speak on. He said he knew a company of men had been formed in Troy to rescue John Brown, and he had no doubt they would make the attempt. I cross-examined him closely, but he could give no satisfactory information on the subject, but still expressed his conviction that such a company existed. I did not regard it of any consequence at the moment, nor do I now look upon it in a different light. Still, upon reflection, I deemed it best to state the circumstances to you. If it should do no good it can certainly do no harm. I have no doubt your active vigilance will prevent the danger of any rescue.

Yours, very respectfully, JAMES BUCHANAN. Hon, Henry A. Wise.

FERNANDO WOOD TO WISE,
NEW YORK, Nov. 2, 1859.—My dear sir:
Read this letter over carefully, and, whether concurring or not in its view, believe it emanates from your friend, and a man who has a thorough knowledge of the pulse of the people of the free States.

the people of the free States,
Your proceedings and conduct thus far, in the matter of the conspiracy at Harper's Ferry, meets with general approval, and elicits commendation from your enemies. The firmness and moderation which has The firmness and moderation which has characterized your course cannot be too highly applauded, and to-day you stand higher than any other man in the Union. Now, my friend, dare you do a bold thing, and "temperjustice with mercy?" Have you nerve enough to send Brown to the State prison for life instead of hanging him? Or rather I should ask whether such a course would be consistent with your own sense of would be consistent with your own sense of duty, for I know that this is the sole controller of your official conduct. Brown is looked upon here as the mere crazy or fool-hardy emissary of other men. Circum-stances create a sympathy for him even with the most ultra friends of the South. I am of this latter class, as by recent speeches am of this latter class, as by recent speeches you may have observed. No Southern man could go further than myself in behalf of Southern rights; but yet, were I the Governor of Virginia, Brown should not be hung, though Seward should be if I could catch him, and in such a course my conduct would be governed by sound policy. The South will gain by showing that it can be magnanimous to a fanatic in its power. such taxes shall be collected by the customs officer, or he shall cause the same to be secured to be paid as provided in these regulations.

I have thus briefly and frankly discharge my duty as your friend, to give advice, under trying circumstances.

Very truly yours,

FERNANDO WOOD.

Hon, H. A. Wise. GOV. WISE TO FERNANDO WOOD RICHMOND, VA., Nov. 4, 1859.—My dear sir: I have duly received and weighed every word of your letter. I give it all credit for good motive and good morals, and made up.

Had I reached Harper's Ferry before these men were captured (and I would have reached there in time had I been forwarded as I ought to have been from Washington and the Relay House), I would have pro-claimed martial law, have stormed them in the quickest possible time, have given then no quarter, and if any had survived, would have tried and executed them under sentence of court-martial. But I was too late. The prisoners were captives, and I then determined to protect them to the ut-termost of my power, and I did protect them with my own person. I escorted them to prison, and placed around them such a force as to overawe lynch law. Every comfort was given them by my orders. And they have been scrupulously afforded a fair and speedy trial, with every opportunity of defense for crimes which were openly perpetrated before the eyes of hundreds, and as openly confessed. They could escape conviction only by technical exceptions, and the chances for these they had to a greater degree by the expedition of prosecution. And the crimes deliberately described tion. And the crimes deliberately done by them are of the deepest and darkest kind which can be committed against our peo-ple. Brown, the chief leader, has been le-gally and fairly tried and convicted, and admits the humanity of his treatment as a prisoner, the truth of the indictment, and the truthfulness of the witnesses against him. He has been allowed excess of counsel, and the freedom of speech beyond any prisoner known to me in our s. It was impossible not to convict He is sentenced to be hung; that is he sentence of a mild code, humanely adudged, and requires no duty from me exsign no death-warrant. If the Executive interposes at all, it is to pardon; and to pardon him I have received petitions, prayers, threats from almost every free State in the Union. From honest, patriotic men, like yourself, many of them, I am warned that hanging will make him a martyr. Ah, will it? Why? The obvious answer to that question shows me above anything the never the state of the shows me above anything the never the state of the shows me above anything the never the shows me above anything the never the state of the shows me above anything the never the shows me above anything the never the state of the shows me above anything the never the shows me above anything the never the shows me above anything the shows me above anything the never the shows me above anything the never the shows me above anything the shows me above anyt question shows me above anything the necessity for hanging him. You ask, "Have you nerve enough to send Brown to the State prison for life, instead of hanging him?" Yes, if I didn't think he ought to be hung, and I would be inexcusable for mitigating his punishment, I could do it without flinching, without a quiver of muscle, against a universal clamor for his life. But was it ever known before that it would be impolitic for a State to execute her laws be impolitic for a State to execute her laws against the highest crimes, without bringing down upon herself the vengeance of a public sentiment outside of her limits, and hostile to her laws? Is it so that it is wisely said to her that she had better spare a murderer, a robber, a traitor, because public sentiment elsewhere will glorify an insurrectionist with martyrdom? If so, it is time to do execution upon him and all like him. And I therefore seat to you former

JOHNSONVILLE, Tenn., May 13.

A somewhat protracted and serious illness must be my principal excuse for not writing to you since some time in January. I was then in Smithland, Ky. The "great rebellion" was beginning fairly to stagger under the heavy blows dealt by the Union army and navy. I think the defeat of Hood before Nashville will be considered by the historian as the "beginning of the end," although almost every successive act in the great tragedy has had its influence, and has pointed, unerringly, to the great result—the utter overthrow of the most diabolical rebellion the world ever saw. "Four years of failure," according to the Chicago convention, were just completed—when the last and most devilish act in this bloody tragedy was committed in the murder of our beloved President, and the attempted assassination Secretary Seward.

The rebellion is fairly subdued, but it leaves agreat portion of the South in a chaotic state both as regards society and law. The people are impoverished to a degree hardly credible. Many have land left, but they have not so much as one poor mule with which they can plow. The result of the unsettled condition of labor and the want of animals will be a very short crop in many parts of the South, and consequent suffering during the coming year.

The wisdom of statesmen and teachers will be taxed to the utmost for the next ten years if we are to gather the fruits of a regenerated South. Ignorance and prejudice are both to be overcome, and law and [Correspondence of the Union Press.]

ten years if we are to gather the fruits of a regenerated South. Ignorance and prejudice are both to be overcome, and law and order to be re-established. During my convalescence I recently visited some friends in northern Illinois, and I was struck with the contrast between that comparatively new country and Kentucky or Tennessee. The whole county is laid off in sections of a mile square, and at the cross roads, every two miles apart, is a neat school-house. That is one great cause (as well as result) of the great difference between the property of that State and this. I have been in Kentucky and Tennessee over two years, and yet I can say truthfully, that I never saw a public school-house in either. I suppose there are such, but they have escaped my notice.

East of the Mississippi, and all the cotton belonging to the rebel government, quartermaster, commissary and other stores, and says that all persons or officers in possession of these public stores will be held to a strict accountability for them. He exhorts citizens to do all in their power to preserve order and peace, and advises them to meet facts as they find them with fortitude and common sense. State officers are directed to return to Jackson immediately. State laws are to remain in force till repealed, nd masters are to be held responsible for the conduct of their slaves. It is thought a State Convention will be ordered by the Legislature at an early day.

A dispatch to Gen. It is said the prisoners have been warned by their counsel to abandon all hope of acquital. Reverdy Johnson, it is said, is preparing an elaborate argument challenging the jurisdiction of the court. An immense meeting of workingmen was held in Landon on the evening of May 1st to give expression of their feelings of inon and horror at the assassination of President Lincoln. Among the resolu-tions adopted was one expressing joy over the defeat of the rebellion and the destrucion of slavery. The Times says President Johnson's

THE LOUISVILLE PROCEEDINGS ON THE DEATH OF MR. LINCOLN. It will be remembered that at the meeting of citizens of Kentucky held in the city to offer a tribute of respect to the memory of Mr. Lincoln, it was resolved that a copy of the address and resolutions should be eent in manuscript, signed by Governor Bramlette and the secretaries, to Mrs. Lincein. They were very beautifully copied by Mr. Ewing, clerk of the Board of Enment, and tastefully ornamented with a bow of black ribbon by Mrs. Raible, and committed to the charge of Dr. L. B. Todd, postmaster at Lexington, Ky., to be presented to Mrs. Lincoln. The following from the Springfield Journal shows Dr. Todd's discharge of the duty entrusted to him:

A day or two after the assassination of

A day or two after the assassination of A day of two after the assassination of resident Lincoln, a meeting of leading cities of Kentucky was held at Louisville, t which a series of appropriate resolutions was adopted expressive of their proions was adopted expressive of their pro-ound regret in view of the sorrowful event, and tendering their condolence to the afflict-ion tendering their condolence to the afflict-ion tendering their condolence to the afflict-d family of the deceased President. d family of the decrased President. These so attions were entrusted to Dr. L. Beecher load, of Lexington, Ky., a member of the centucky delegation, and a relative of resident Lincoln's family, by whom they have presented in person to Capt. Robert dincoln, on the arrival of the latter in this ty, instead of being placed in the hands of apt. N. W. Edwards, as a paragraph in the Chicago Tribune, of a day or two ago, lated it was his intention to do.

None have shown a more profound remet for the fate of President Lincoln than be loyal citizens of his native State. Gov. Frank ette was deeply affected by his death, and in a speech delivered in Louisville a say or two after the assassination, after reputing the prominent acts of President Lincoln's administration, and alluding to be opposition which his policy had met in Centucky, he frankly acknowledged that is opponents had been wrong and Mr. opponents had been wrong and Mr. coin light. The Governor, accompanied his staff and a large delegation, amountg in all to about sixty persons, joined the meral cortege at Indianapolis, whence mey accompanied it to Chicago and finally to this city, chartering a car for that pur-pose. Next to Hunoi-, President Lincoln's home, no State has surpassed Kentucky in the respect it has shown to his memory

[For the Press] I cannot see that the masked "Marco" relieves himself of one impertinence by perpetrating another. Without any reason whatever he intermeddled himself with me, and when I called his attention to his flippant statement, he exhibits, as an excuse for committing one naisance, a desire o make himself a general nuisance. He confesses judgment on the first issue by changing his terms in his new effort. And in this second impertinence he affirms to snow that of which he knows nothing.

A RIDICULOUS FINALE.

The winding up of Mr. Jeff. Davis's official career appears to have been extremely ludicrous. The statement of his captors is that he, with his party, was hiding in the woods and that when he heard the noise made by those who were after him he pulled on his wife's gown and ran. As he cudded along however the gown flew out in the wind showing a pair of legs with boots on. The exhibition was more suspicious than alluring, but was nevertheless sufficiently enticing to excite those who were after him to hurry up. Pretty soon they overtook the fugitive and lo! the woman in boots was no other than the redoubtable Jeff!

He made a little flourish with a bowie knife, but su sided at the sight of a pistol and was taken 'n charge. Jeff. never was troubled with any superfluity of personal valor though he was audacious and cruel in his office and absolutely grand in the bluff game.

When captured he rescrited to a characteristic dodge, without which he could not Louisville Theater have been Jeff. Davis; and that was to pre-tend indignant wonder at what our men S. MALLORY....... were doing to him, and to express as tonishment that the Government was not more magnanimous than to hunt women! That indeed is Jeff's way, though nobody need believe that he expected any thing else was really surprised that a man in petticoats should not be considered a woman; but none the less on that account would Jeff, assume an air of injured innocence! But if Jeff. did expect magnanimity from us, we would like to have heard from him of the execution is ordered to allow time on what ground he founded his expectation, considering that in all the last few years he has whiningly convplained incessantly of our lack of that quality and of the barbarous way in which we conducted the war. There is one fair conclusion, however, that as he is astonished, surprisa'd and confounded that we do not now, as he says, exhibit magnanimity his complaints do." ing the four years have been a long series, of acknowledged lies-and such they were in fact, and no man is more capable and ready to manufacture and deal in that commodity, to his own grand advantage, than Mr. Jeff Davis, and never did an injured people show greater forbearance and moderation than we, or the ringleader of insurgents, greater perfidy than that notorious individual, so long y'clepd the "President of the Confederate States."

It is true that Jeff is an arrant hypocrite, and we doubt if hypocrisy be not his most conspicuous trait. There is more or less insincerity in every word that he ever spoke or wrote, but he has the art of seeming to believe most earnestly himself every false word that he utters. The most cold blooded exhibition he ever made of this quality was while he was, from policy, deof Congress from Maryland, is understood to have been referred by the Judge Advocate to the Secretary of War.

The agent of Baroum is in Washington, and has offered $500 for the frock in which hands. Pecksniff was in hypocrisy a fool compared to Jeff Davis! When Jeff tried the dodge of astonishment perhaps he thought that Col. Pritchard would be astonished too and might let mittee was to adjourn at an early day, to come directly to Washington to appear before it, and Sherman peremptority refused.

But then Mrs. Davis stepped in to the reserved. But then Mrs. Davis stepped in to the rescue and warned the men not to provoke Jeff or he might hurt somebody!

And so ends in a ridiculous fizz!e the of-Hon, J. A. Gilmer, of North Carolina, has ficial career of the erewhile rebel Presivided his land to be worked by his form-dent. From the part of chief villain in a slaves, and has furnished them the facilterrible tragedy he makes his last appearance as the frightened buffoon of a ridiculous farce.

Let somebody come forward and unravel the mystery of how the banner of a Philadelphia German society found a resting place in the garret of the Rebel Capitol.

We have often heard that Jeff Davis boasted that he would surrender only when he had found the last ditch. We confess we did not expect him to find the last ditch beneath his wife's petticoat.

magnificent gold watch. After the excitement consequent of the first robbery had died out he returned and commenced his old game. He robbed an old gentleman, whose name we did not learn, of $400 and a gold watch. He again left the city till the mat-er died out, and again returned to practice. This time he was less successful as to the amount of spoils and so unfortunate as to get officers Hammond and Slater upon his He put up at the Ormsby and made the acquaintance young men from Hardin county, who had been run off by the guerrillas. It is stated that he drugged them with porter, and then robbed them of about $130. When the gentlemen awoke they found themselves minus that amount, lesides a valuable breastpin belonging to one of them. They immediately sus-picioned Morgan, and offered $200 reward for his arrest. Officers Hammond and Sla-ter deserve great credit for the manner in which they managed this case, and in arresting a notorious scoundrel.

The Indianapolis Journal of Monday says an application for a writ of habeas corpus in the case of Milligan, Bowles and rsey has been made in the Circuit Court of the United States, now sitting in that of the United States, now sitting in that city. There was a division of opinion which was certified, and the application is taken to the Supreme Court at Washington for its determination. The Journal says if the Supreme Courts shall decide that the proceedings of the Military Commission were illegal, "all good citizens will concede the necessity of deferring to its indement the necessity of deferring to its judgment, and turning over all prisoners who have been so tried to the civil courts; while if the jurisdiction of the Military Court is sustained, all men will concede the legality, as well as the justice, of the punishment pre-scribed for Milligan, Bowles and Horsey, and for others who have been condemned by similar courts." The Journal expresses a hope that the President will suspend the execution until the Supreme Court renders a decision, and observes: "If it should sustain the jurisdiction of the Military Commission, grave doubts will be removed from the minds of many good and loyal men, and public justice will not suffer by the delay; but if its decision should be adverse to the military jurisdiction, it will not be a pleasant reflection to any of us that these men were illegally expented although these men were illegally executed, although we may feel that they justly deserved death at the hands of a competent tribunal."

MEMOIR OF MRS, CAROLINE P. KEITH. New York; D. Appleton & Co, Louis-ville: J. P. Morton & Co. This book has laid on our table for some time, and certainly has deserved notice be fore, but a press of other business has pre vented our reading it till lately.

It is a biography of a woman known personally to many of our citizens, to whom she endeared herself while residing here, by her many excellent qualities of heart and intellect. It is made up mostly of ex-tracts from her own letters, strung upon a slender thread of biography from the pen of her brother, and is a very interesting ac-count of missionary labor in China, with some slight sketches of Japan. It is a story of a life spent in earnest devotion to duty that has moved us to the highest admiration and respect. Though we do not al-ways sympathize with her in her religious views and scruples, her struggles are so touchingly shown forth, that we cannot help feeling that the dictates of conscience were to her an irresistible law. In spite of early training and the earnest remonstran-ces of her oldest and dearest friends, she left the faith of her fathers, and the com-munion of their church to join that body of christians whose doctrines she thought more in accordance with the teachings the Bible. To a woman of her keen sensi bilities, every step was over thorns: but to her acute conscience no ties of association or friendship could be a restraint from the path of right. What seemed to her wrong could not be endured, though glossed ever so much by earthly love and wordly inter-

Living for a long time in the South, the workings of slavery seemed so deadly that she was outspoken in her denunciations of it. This cost her her first love. A worthless lover we may say, but yet to her a betrothed husband. Yearning over the benighted heathen, single-hearted, single-handed, she exiled herself to depart as a missionary to a pagan land from her country; from a country most dearly loved, and over whose trials in a wicked rebellion she shed many burning tears of pity and distress. But no disaster could be a cause of dispair to her, for faith always was illumining her future, and trust in God made every prospect pleasant to her eyes. She died in July, 1862, bequeathing a bright example of truest womanhood to the world, through which she had passed as through a battle field as through a battle-field.

The details of her strife with weakness and inclination are given in full in this book, and we cordially commend it to all who desire to know

THERE IS NO ACCOUNTING FOR TASTES. We learn that at a quilting party in the neighborhood of Bloomfield the other day, where all the neighbors had gathered for a jollification, there was of course a grand array of the "young hopeful" of the country. RUNAWAY .- A horse attached to a buggy containing a lady and gentleman was frightened at some object on Hancock street yesterday and ran off. Before he could be checked he ran against the pump at the corner of Hancock and Gray, throwing both the occupants out. The lady struck her head against the curbing and was quite seriously injured. The gentleman was uninjured. The horse was stopped somewhere on Broadway, but not before he had broken the buggy to pieces.

NEW ALBANY, IND., May 16. EDS. PRESS: As from the present appearances, there will be a general amnesty granted to all rebels, no matter how wicked or guilty. I would like to make one sug-gestion, and I hope and trust that the newspapers of the country will see the manifest opriety of my suggestion, and give it as enerous and cordial support as they have he general amnesty proposition.

My suggestion is this: That inasmuch as we have licked the rebellion down, and our souls are as big as elephants, and that we don't want to be outdone in our magnanimity and generosity, and all the other great and good imities and osities that go to great and good imities and osities that go to make up a great and good and Phontotose rous people, we shall voluntarily tax ourselves (I mean all those who have been loyal from the start), sufficiently to give a general and generous support to all rebels during their natural lives, and let us most religiously exert ourselves to the utmost to have their lives prolonged to the last possible moment. Indeed, I am not at all sure that it would not be better to give rewards to all rebels for their transcendent virtues, to all rebels for their transcendent virtues. in proportion to what they have done. I mean of course in addition to their support. I am not particular as to whether they begin at the top and work down, or from the

IMPORTANT ARREST.—Officers Hammond and Slater yesterday arrested a man on the mailboat who gave his name as Morgan, and who claims to be a cousin of John Morgan. This man has been practicing the confidence game in this city for some months, and has been successful in cluding the keen vigilance of our police. Some four mouths ago he introduced himself to a stopping in the city, and so feel and successed in the city and so feel and successive the successful in cluding the others in proper ratio. Now, so stopping in the city, and so feel and successive to begin with those who have made the smallest number of widows and orphans, or stolen the few-est horses, and paythem a suitable reward, and then work up or down. I don't know which is most proper, to the cruelest and most blood-thirsty rebel, who has tormented and starved our poor soldiers to death, and give him a reward as is a reward, graduating the others in proper ratio. Now, so stopping in the city, and so feel and the work up or down. I don't know which is most proper, to the cruelest and most blood-thirsty rebel, who has tormented and starved our poor soldiers to death, and give him a reward as is a reward, graduating the others in proper ratio. Now, so stopping in the city, and so feel and the work up or down. I don't know which is most proper, to the cruelest and most blood-thirsty rebel, who has tormented and starved our poor soldiers to death, and give him a reward, graduating the others in proper ratio. Perhaps it would be best to begin with rebel gentleman from Tennessee who was stopping in the city, and so far won his confidence as to steal from him $1500 and a magnificent gold watch. After the exciteficiently expanded to fairly reach that point, but at the present rate of progress I think it will have reached that point in about two days. You will see I am one of the generous whole-souled fellows who go in for the "whole hog-the entire animal;" and as these fellows are so unanimous and cor-dial in support of the general amnesty proposition. I can cut no sort of figure in supposition, I can cut no sort of nighter in sup-porting that measure, but must try an un-beaten path, and think I have struck the right one. Don't you? and if you advocate these measures vigor-ously, I think we will very soon have these general amnesty fellows flabigasted. I have heard of an editor who would write one thing one day, and the opposite the next, and when his attention was called to it, he said, "yes, I see; this was written by Phillip drunk, and that by Phillip sober." All through this war, we plain, simple minded folks have been taught that when they caught these rebels, they should be punish ed as they deserved, and the Democrats have insisted that what was done should be done Constitutionally, and the Government have been bothered not a little to so carry on the war as to meet the views of these people, and I believe I am not alone in being such a consumate ass, as to suppose that when the Constitution said that death should be the possible for the constitution of the constitution of the constitution said that death should be the penalty for treason, it meant that trait-ors should be hung. But all the Democrats now go for not hanging, but for general amnesty, and a good share of the Administration papers are trying to outstrip them in advocating this measure. Which posi-tion was the right one? Which is Phillip drunk, and which Phillip sober? We plain, simple minded people would like to be informed if rebellion is not treason, and also if it is not the sort of treason of which the Constitution speaks, and if treason does not necesitate the existence of traitors, and then, if so, why should not these traitors be Constitutionally hung? Please give us light on this subject, and enlighten loyal Phillip

[Special Correspondence of the Union Press.] LEGISLATIVE HALL, May 16. My thoughts on arriving in Frankfort could only be described in the words beautiful, lovely, and charming, which fell from my lips on seeing it for the first time. It to the long looked for garden-the beautiful Eden. Surrounded as it is on all sides by lovely hills covered with verdure, and by lovely hills covered with verdure, and with the placid Kentucky coursing along its side, I could not help exclaiming, "What a misery it must be to those who cannot see the works of nature." The city is not very large, considering it is the State capital, and that it is the principal point of attraction for several months of the year. There seems to be a very considerable influx of strangers to this place at the present flux of strangers to this place at the presentime, and mostly on account of the interes attached to the trial of the Hon. Joshua F Bullitt, Judge of the Supreme Court of Kentucky. Speaking with several of the honorable members of both houses, I overheard one or two say that they do not know whether there would be a trial or not, as there is a rumor that he has resigned and offered to do so, that the resignation will not be accepted, but that he will be brought It is expected that the Constitutional amendment will also be brought up again during the present session, and that now, as we can see the dawning of peace, that some of those laws called for by the emergency, will be either modified or totally repealed. to trial.

Now turning from the Legislative halls. I must give you a slight description of my journey from Louisville to Frankfort. We left Louisville at 6 A. M. and sped along merrily, stopping at several minor stations before reaching here at 9:30 A. M. this morning. The ground seemed as if it were thankful for the late rains, and although they have materially retarded the planting of corn, oats, and other cereals which ought to have been planted some time since, still the crops, as far as planted, look fine and promising, and I have no doubt we will have a large though late crop. The fruit trees seemed loaded with blossoms, and do not look as if the frost had in the least impaired them. The appearance of the country seems like an omen of our future springing up afresh after a severe storm. God grant that it may be so.

NEW YORK, May 16 .- The following is summary of the conclusion of the testimony taken on Monday. The further examination of the witness J. P. Early elicited no new facts concerning the intimacy of O'Laughlin and Booth.

O'Laughlin and Booth.
Lieut. Henderson testified that he saw O'Laughlin in Washington April 14, and that he told him that he had an engagement to see Booth that day.

David Stanton said he saw O'Laughlin the night before the murder at the house of the Secretary of War, he was standing on the stoop, and asked me where the Secre-tary of War was; I teld him he was stand-ing on the stoop. O'Laughlin remained there till I requested him to go off. When I pointed the Secretary out he did not go to

D. C. Reed testified that he saw John H. Surratt in Washington the day of the assassination; bowed to him and received a bow in return. He noticed that he wore spurs

Peter Slatterwell testified that Booth came his restaurant next to the theater the night of the murder about 10 o'clock, and took a drink of whisty; he then went out and in 8 or 10 minutes after he heard of the assassination of the President. I saw Har rold the same night or the night before. He inquired for Booth. It was between 7 and 8

S. M. Dye testified that he was sitting in front of Ford's t eater about 9 P. M. on the night of the 14th of April, and elegantly dressed man come out of the the ater and talk to two rough looking persons; heard the well dressed one say, "I think he will come out now," referring he supposed to the President; he then went into the sa-loon, staid long enough to get a drink, came up as if he was becoming intoxicated, and whispered to the roughest looking man and went into the passage that leads from the stage; then the smallest one stepped upjust stage; then the smallest one stepped up just as the well dressed one appeared again, and called out the time; he started up street and remained awhile, and came down again, and again called the time; presently he came and called the time again, louder than before; I think it was 10 minutes after 10 he then started on a fast walk up the street the best dressed man then went inside the theater; this one the witness recognized as Booth from his photograph; he also said if the prisoner Spangler had a moustache he would take him for the rough looking man. Rufus Stable, keeper of a livery stable, testified to the intimacy of Booth, Surrat, and Atzurat. Atzurat told him Surrat early in April had been to Richmond, and coming back got into a difficulty and thet deter-back got into a difficulty, and that detec tives were after him.

James H. Humphreys, livery stable keeper, also testified to the intimacy beween Booth and Surrat.

The testimony taken before the doors were opened to the reporters for the press includes that of a man who was in the rebel service, and which went to show that as early as 1863 Booth and others contem-plated the murder of the President, also the burning of Northern cities. Secret meetings were held consisting of rebel offi-cers, at which Booth was present, and the assassination was freely spoken of in the streets of Richmond.

Others testified that they had seen Booth in company with Clay, Halcomb, Thompson, and others in Canada. capt. T. McGovern described the assassination, and said though he knew Booth he did not recognize him as the man that went into the President's box and afterwards improd on the step box and afterwards improd on the step box.

Spangler ought to have been there to change the scenes. The route Booth took to get out of the theater was entirely unobstructed. Sometimes there weer so many people that one can't pass, but that night everything seemed clear, which was un-usual. Didn't recollect ever seeing Spangler wear a moustache.

Joe Simmons, colored, employed at Ford's Theater, testified he saw Booth on the back part of the stage, between 5 and 6 o'clock on the 14th, he saw him next when he jumped from the box to the stage. When he went out in the evening he invited Spangler out to take a drink. Booth and Spangler were quite intimate. Spangler used to attend to Booth's horses when Booth was away. Spangler's position on the stage was on the right hand as you face the audience, opposite the President's box.

Spangler was on the stage attending to his duty as usual that night. Do not re-member seeing him during the second act; saw him walking about looking at the per-formance during the first act; never saw him wear a moustache.

John Miles (colored) employed in the theater, testified that Booth brought a horse from the stable to the back door of the theater, and called for Ned Spangler, on the night of the murder about 9 or 10 o'clock, three times; after that idn't see Booth, but heard horses feet going out the alley. About 3 o'clock in the evening saw Booth come from the stable where he kept his horse with Ned Spangler and Jos. Maddox. The stable is not over 50 yards from the theater. Spangler was pushing a scene when Booth called for him. A boy called John Peanut held the horse. Spangler ran across the stage when Booth called. Spangler appeared familiar with Booth. The Judge Advocate remarked that it would be necessary for the court to understand the locality of the interior of the theater to visit it, and therefore they would meet there this (Tuesday) morning at 9 o'clock.

The court then adjourned to 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Dr. Stone testified as to the condition of President after the shooting. The ball extracted from the head was exhibited and he identified it by the initials A. L., which he had scratched upon it with a penknife. Sergt. Cobb, who on the night of the assassination was on duty at the navy yard bridge, testified as to Booth and his com-panion passing into Maryland. Booth on being challenged, said he was going to his house in the country, near Greenstown. The pistol picked up in the box was produced in court and identified.

Lieut, Lovatt, who went in pursuit of the assassin, gave an interesting account of overtaking him, and of the conduct of Dr. Mudd, who dressed Booth's leg. The boot which was cut from Booth's leg was produced in court. Inside was written J. The Times has a friendly and hopeful editorial upon the speeches of Sir F. Bruce and President Johnson, which it regards as resh, and earnest of amity; says Johnson's anguage is pacific and statesmanlike, and will meet with response in England.

The Times hopes idle words of provocation, which have been employed by irre-

The Queen's response to the address from Parliament says, she entirely participates in the sentiments addressed to her on the assassination, and she has given directions to her Minister at Washington to make known the feelings entertained by Parliament in common with herself and the

In the House of Lords Bayensworth questioned Lord Derby as to the meaning of his expression, that Southerners, if con-nected with the murder, committed worse

Lord Derby said he did not see how his expression could be so wrongfully inter-preted, he used the well known political aphorism of Talleyrand to simply convey his meaning, that Southerners by ing what was not only highly immoral, would also approve that which could do nothing but inflict the most serious Injury on their political cause.

Examination of the Attempt to Introduce Malignant Fever into Northern Cities. NEW YORK, May 16.—The Bermuda Ad-ocate of the 26th ult. contains a report of the preliminary examination of the plot to introduce yellow fever into our Northern cities. This examination has resulted in the committal of a resident of the Island named Swan, on the charge of having con-spired with one Blackburn to take charge of certain trunks containing infective clothing, for the purpose of having them forwarded to New York, Philadelphia, and warded to New York, Finladelphia, and other cities, with the object of there introducing the yellow fever. Blackburn, whose hailing points were Hallfax, Quebec, and the Clifton House, Niagara Falls, Canada side, made liberal promises to Swan provided the contract was fully carried out. The funds were to be supplied freely from the Confederate exchequer; and meanwhile Blackburn himself was to retire to Halifax David Stanton was permitted to attend the record of his testimony. The preamble sets forth in great detail and needless iteration of the action of the United States Government in declaring all slaves in rebel districts free, and speaks most bitterly of the proclamation of Presi-dent Lincole, denouncing it as unprinci-pled and inhuman. Then follows the resolution; therefore,

Resolved, By the House of Representatives of the Confederate States, the Senate are not among the acts of legitimate war-fare, but are properly classed among such acts as the right to put to death prisoners of war without special right, and the right to assassinate, and, if persisted in, will justify this Government in the adoption of measures of retaliation. The endorsements on the paper go to show that this resolution was read the first and second time, and was read the first and second time, and made the special order for the secret session on the 16th of February, 1864.

The Herald's special says: President Johnson has under consideration a new amnesty proclamation. The issuance or suppression of it is expected will be decided on at the Cabinet meeting to be held to-day.

The proclamation, if issued, will announce what classes of rebels are to be held responsible for their treason, and what will responsible for their treason, and what will expected the greater part of it will short-return to the North, as soon as order all have been restored in that vicinity. General Wright has appointed a number ter justice in the surrounding country, and is using every exertion with the best success to substitute sivil for military rule in Southern Virginia.

The Herald's army correspondent has the following: The 6th Army Corps, Major General Wright, is still at Danville, but it

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The Secretary of War requested him to go, and he went. This was about half-past 10 o'clock. O'Laughlin did not say what his business was, and did not appear to have any. There was a large crowd of people there, and a band was serenading the Secretary of War and General Grant. and General Grant.

and General Grant.

Peter Slatterwell testified he kept a restaurant near Ford's Theater. About 10 o'clock on the night of the 14th of April a man called for some whisky, and after drinking went out hastily. About 8 or 10 minutes afterward heard the President was assassinated. Either on that night or the night before Herreld stopped in and innight before Harrold stopped in and inquired for Booth. Jas. M. Dye testified—Saw several sus-

Jas. M. Dye testined—Saw several sus-picious-looking persons in front of Ford's Theater at half-past nine o'clock on the night of the 14th of April. One was ele-gantly dressed; two others somewhat rough in appearance. About the end of the second act the well-dressed man said to the others, "I think he will come out soon." Soon after this man steepped in the saloon and took a drink. When he came out he whispered to a rough looking man and then went into the passage leading from the stage to the street. The smallest of the three called out the time, and a well dressed one appeared and called it again, and finally a third time louder than he called before. "Ten minutes past ten." The best dressed man then went into the theater. The small man started up street at a fast walk. Soon a man came running out, saying lhe President was shot. Witness identified the well-dressed man as Booth by comparing him warm and dry, and the river has commenced receding, ct the well-dressed man said to the others, Every rebel body of regular soldiers and guerrilla organization in this State and Northern Alabama have given up to come under Thomas' late order.

Thousands of rebel soldiers have arrived here and taken the oath, including the redoubtable Dick Mann. Nearly all the hospitals are cleared out.

The Tribune's special says the War Department has before it a bill introduced in the rebel Congress by Mr. Curry, of Alabama, which was concocted for the purpose of vindicating the starvation of prisoners of war, the murder of black soldiers, the barning of Northern cities, and finally, the assassination of the President and his Cabinet.

The Alabama have given up to come dent was shot, Witness identified the well-dressed man as Booth by comparing him with the photograph. He thought if Spangler had a mustache, he would exactly resemble the rough-looking man he saw at the theater. G. M. Buckingham, door-keeper at Ford's Theater—knew Wilkes Booth. On the night of the 14th le saw Booth enter the theater, and soon after saw him jump on the stage. He was certain Spangler did not enter the theater from the front on that night.

THE FLOOD ABATING .- The River wa concurring, that we do adhere to our opinion that the so-called emancipation proclamation of the President of the United mation of the President of the United districts, having receded at dark only about states and enlistment of negro slaves in the several Federal armies now opposed to us weather continues dry, and it was very weather continues dry, and it was very warm all day, the thermometer ranging over 80 in the shade.

The river is kept up by the influence of the late freshet from Pittsburg, where the rise was high and sudden though doing no material damage. It was falling fast at Pittsburg yesterday, with only eight feet water in the channel.

At Cincinnait there were 50 feet water in At Cincinnati there were 50 feet water in the channel, and we report the same channel depth here at the foot of the falls. The ri.er will commence falling fast here to-day and relieve the residents along water street, who have been inundated twice this year. The Ruth, Capt. Geo. Pegram's great boat, has her departure to New Orleans de-ferred until Thursday evening. She is at the upper wharf and was yesterday engag-ed in receiving a vast amount of stores and forage from the Government warehouse at

Passengers or shippers to New Orleans or way points are hereby reminded that the Ruth, the only Louisville boat in the trade, takes her departure to-morrow, Thursday evening, from the city wharf.

Our thanks are due Jno. T. Earheart, the clerk of the N. J. Bigley, from Eastport, for an interesting memorandum of river news. She towed the Crescent City, full of passengers, from Eastport to Paducah, and we invite attention to the highly complimentary card of the passengers to Capt. Varble. It will be found in another column.

The Cumberland is slowly falling, and the Tyrone and Norman from this port ar-rived at Nashville on Monday. The Bermuda is due to-day.

The Emma Floyd and Starlight left Nashville Monday evening for Cincinnati. The Kanawha river has been very high, though falling at the last dates, with 20 feet water in the channel.

For Memphis.—The fleet Liberty No. 2, Capt. Conner, was due from Memphis last night. She is the regular Louisville and Memphis Wednesday packet, running in connection with the St. Patrick, making weekly trips, and we think it the duty of our merchants and shippers to encourage and stand by these boats, one of which leaves this port every Wednesday, and the other every Saturday.

The Liberty No. 2 will be found at the city wharf this morning ready for passengers and freight, for all points along the Lower Ohio to Cairo, and on the Mississippi as far as Memphis. She starts at 5 o'clock this evening, and the clerk, Ed. Judge, will be found correct and attentive. Capt. Conner, was due from Memphis last

The Gen. Lytle is the swift mailboat today for Cincinnati and the East. She starts at noon, connecting with the early trains going East.

The Gen. Buell is the evening mailboat for Cincinnati to-day. She starts 4 o'clock.
The St. Charles is the People's Line packet for Cincinnati and the East at noon to-day, in charge of Capt. Watts. The clerk is our clever young friend W. H.
Caffrey, of this city.
The Wren, Capt. Sam Sanders, is the Madison, Carrollton, and Kentucky river packet to-day. She starts at 3 o'clock.
The Blue Wing No. 3 is in the packet trade hence to Madison, Carrollton, and Cedar Lock, Kentucky river. She starts at 3 o'clock.

The Champion, from Vicksburg yesterday, had a small consignment of cotton for this market. COAL AND SALT .- The tow boats Condor and Windsor came in from Pomeroy yesterday with a fleet of barges in tow, containing 75,000 bushels of coal for Captain Dugan for steamboat use.

Three barges and two flatboats laden with salt have also arrived from Pomeroy with 5,660 barrels of salt for the Ohio River Salt Company, the bulk of which was reshipped to New Altany and Evansville. to New Altany and Evansville.
